

- a. There. Do you see it?
- b. The green shape?
- a. Duck green.
- b. As in the upper disk of woody Night Shade leaves?
- a. As in neck of Mallard.
- b. Ah, Yew leaves.
- a. You have it, sir. Ceylonite. Do you see it?
- b. Not sure... Beside the pebble? The cream yellow one?
- a. Porcelain Jasper?
- b. There is no chestnut brown, though there's a very small hint of Dutch orange.
- a. Ochre with a little white? Yes, just to the right of it. A distinctive duck green shape in the mud.
- b. With siskin green side belly?
- a. And vermilion fins.
- b. Ah, red coral...
- a. Love apple...
- b. Hyacinth...
- a. Hyacinth? No, not Hyacinth. Cinnaber perhaps.
- b. Hyacinth! Scarlet red with lemon yellow and a minute proportion of brown. Hyacinth! The red spots of the Luggens Apteris Fly! The red on the golden Rennette Apple. Hyacinth!
- a. Sir, vermilion red is scarlet red with a minute proportion of brownish red.
- b. Scarlet red?
- a. Arterial blood red.
- b. With a little gamboge yellow?
- a. Gamboge?
- b. Wings of the Goldfinch canary.
- a. Ah yes, yellow jasmine.
- b. Exactly right.
- a. Do you see it now?
- b. I don't.
- a. Ah, no. No, I think it has gone.
- b. A shame.

a. Yes. A shame. It was beautiful.