

In Pictures: Museum exhibition offers window into art of glass

Diverse work from the world of glass art has gone on show at the National Museum of Scotland in Edinburgh.

Here are some of the pieces gracing the Art of Glass exhibition in the Scottish capital.

Bryony Windsor, head of exhibitions, takes a closer look at a glass and light sculpture titled Alter by artist Helen Maurer which features in a new exhibition Art of Glass at the National Museum of Scotland in Edinburgh (Jane Barlow/PA)

Danielle Arnaud, London

Daily Mail

Press Association, 'In Pictures: Museum exhibition offers window into art of glass'

5 April 2018

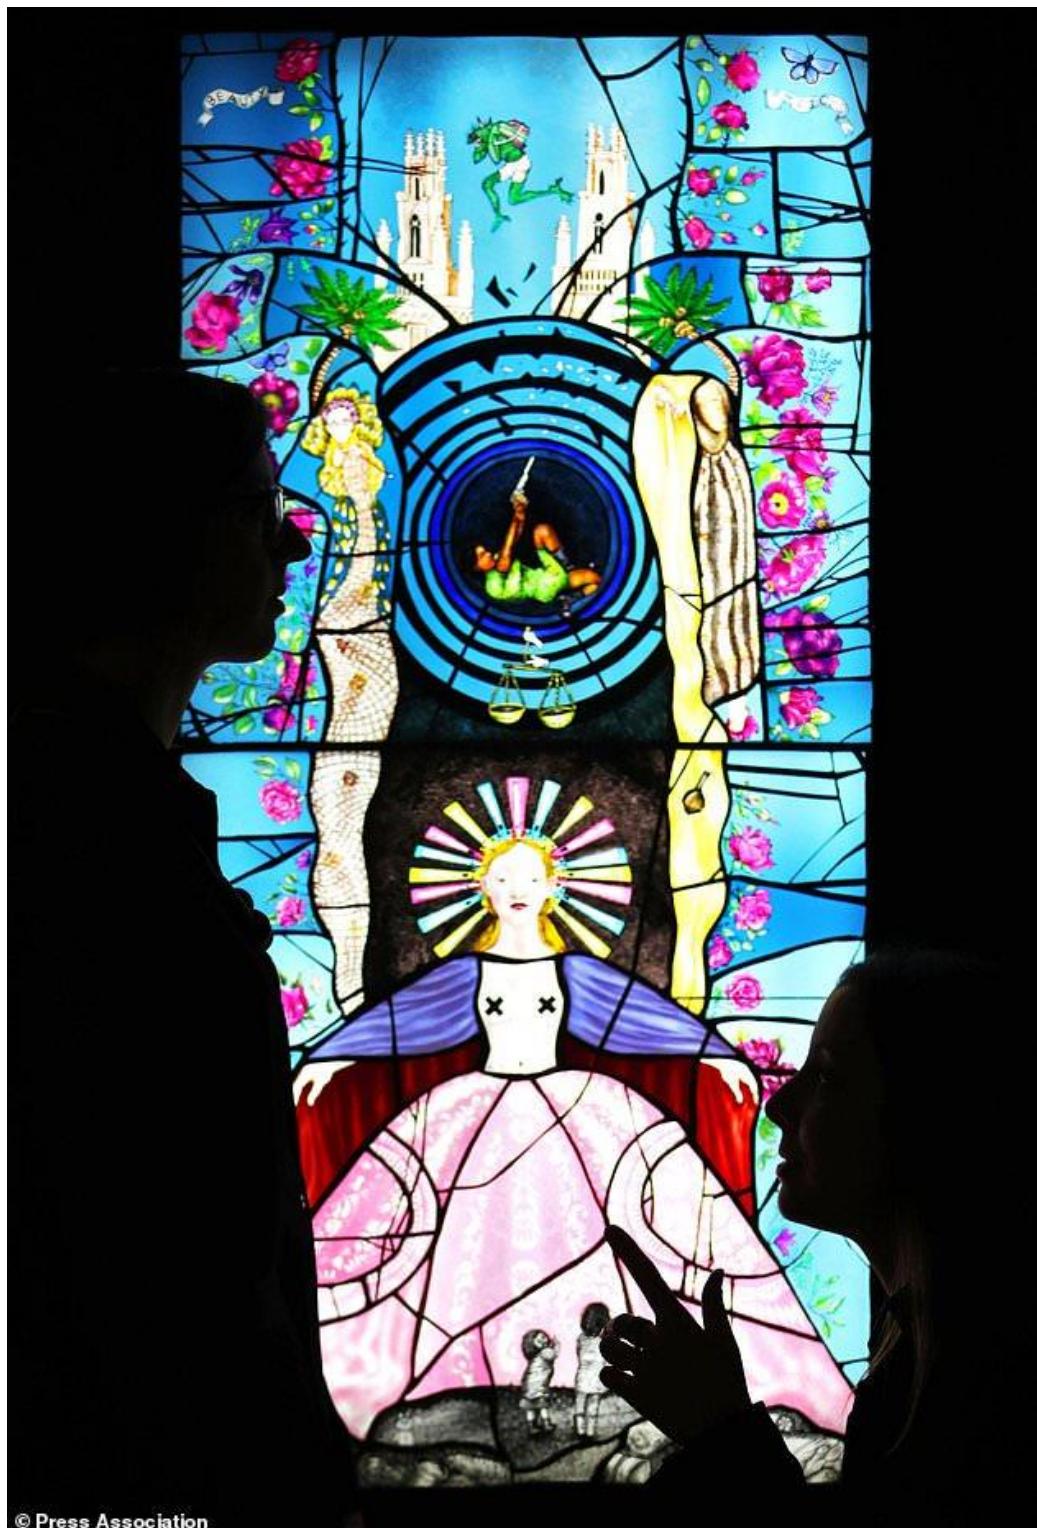

The Glass Cyphers installation which features glass powder with projected mapped video and sound, by artists Griet Beyaert and Paul Miller (Jane Barlow/PA)

Danielle Arnaud, London

Daily Mail

Press Association, 'In Pictures: Museum exhibition offers window into art of glass'

5 April 2018

Bryony Windsor, head of exhibitions, and curator Sarah Rothwell, right, take a closer look at a piece of stained glass called Beauty Tricks by artist Pinkie Maclure (Jane Barlow/PA)

Danielle Arnaud, London

Daily Mail

Press Association, 'In Pictures: Museum exhibition offers window into art of glass'

5 April 2018

© Press Association
Artist Geoffrey Mann alongside his cast glass sculpture titled The Leith Pattern (Jane Barlow/PA)

Read more: <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/wires/pa/article-5582325/In-Pictures-Museum-exhibition-offers-window-art-glass.html#ixzz5BtcnDU00>

Follow us: @MailOnline on Twitter | DailyMail on Facebook